1. Program Objectives
This program is designed for undergraduate students who wish to study abroad but are not confident in their language ability. Although the program is just for two short weeks, its purpose is to provide students a chance to experience life overseas which they will not be able to gain through language study alone. The objectives of the program are: 1) To fully experience the culture of and society around Sheffield by physically being at this British university; 2) To take courses in a wide variety of subjects taught by distinguished professors in an academic environment of a premier British university; 3) To improve one’s English ability through courses and English classes taught by these professors; and 4) To provide motivation towards making future long-term study abroad plans and pursuing a career overseas.

* University of Sheffield: The University of Sheffield is one of UTokyo’s partner schools having formed a partnership in 2012. Since then, exchange programs have been taking place regularly. The University of Sheffield is located in the city of Sheffield, about 260 kilometers northwest of London (around two-and-a-half hours from London by train), and is a member of the Russell Group, which is composed of large-scale research universities in the U.K. To date, the University of Sheffield has produced five Nobel Prize winners.

2. Program Summary
This program, which is specially designed for UTokyo students, combines English language education with academic courses by University of Sheffield’s prominent professors. Local students provide support and discussion sessions before and after the courses. There are two tracks in the academic lectures: one for humanities and one for science and engineering. For English language education, students will take English classes with students from other foreign universities at the English Language Teaching Centre in the University of Sheffield.

Note: This program is made for a group of UTokyo students who wish to experience what studying abroad is like and to provide motivation for participating in an actual study abroad program. This program is NOT intended for students who have substantial experience of studying overseas, are confident in their language skills, and desire to participate in a general summer school program at a foreign university (attending regular lectures and academic courses). Also, although there will be chances for participants to interact with local students and students from other countries through seminars, courses and social activities, as this program is held during the summer vacation period, interaction will be limited.

- Course details: Attached separately
When applying, students should choose one of the two courses: A: Science and Engineering lectures or B: Arts and Humanities and Social Sciences Lectures.
