Short-term Study Abroad Programs supported by UTokyo Alumni (for Undergraduate Students) UTokyo Global Experience Program

2017.12.

Overview

The University of Tokyo has been launching various initiatives to encourage as many students as possible to experience studying abroad or international exchanges while enrolled at the university. As part of such efforts, the university is promoting short-term studying abroad (less than three months), summer programs as well as exchange programs.

A part of the scholarship provided for the programs in this call is funded by donations from the UTokyo Global Experience Program, an alumni fund-raising initiative.

The project is based on the idea of encouraging as many general undergraduate students as possible to proactively consider studying abroad, not just the undergraduates who have the resources to do so, in order for them to gain experience at foreign universities at an early stage in their academic life, such as through summer programs, so that they can acquire a more global perspective.
