

Information

Expansion of registration qualification for Occasional Daycare from April, 2018.

The University of Tokyo Day Nurseries were set up to provide daycare services for faculty, staff, and students with small children, to make it easier for them to raise a family while working, doing research, or pursuing studies.

Applications are screened by the Day Nurseries Steering Committee every month for both daily and occasional daycare.

The registration qualification for Occasional Daycare at the Komaba Mukunoki and Kashiwa Donguri Day Nurseries have already expanded in the past.

From April 2018, those who fall in the following two categories are able to apply for Occasional Day care at the Hongo Keaki Day Nursery and the Shirokane Himimawari Day Nursery.

1) If you work at the University of Tokyo but are not employed by the university, for example, as a joint research member, a visiting fellow, or a part-time teacher/lecturer.

2) Applications will be accepted even if your spouse is currently unemployed but is looking for jobs or waiting to start school. (However, it is necessary for them to be employed or have started school when the child starts at the nurseries.)

Please contact the relevant sections in charge of the nursery on each campus for details on entering the University of Tokyo Day Nurseries and so on.
