Navigating Contemporary Global Challenges

25-26 September 2023, Cambridge/Hybrid

The University of Tokyo and the University of Cambridge are committed to collaborating to navigate and tackle global challenges. Please join us in this symposium and discuss with academics and experts some of the biggest contemporary challenges, such as:

- How can we improve equality, diversity and inclusion in our societies and campuses?
- How can leading-edge engineering contribute to sustainability?
- How can we address security challenges while navigating the rise of AI?
- How should researchers engage safely in international research collaboration?

NAVIGATING CONTEMPORARY GLOBAL CHALLENGES

PARALLEL SESSION 1 EQUALITY, DIVERSITY AND INCLUSION

Date: Monday 25 September 2023

Time: 09:30am-12:10pm UK / 17:30pm-20:10pm Japan

Location: Hybrid; The West Hub, JJ Thomson Avenue, Cambridge, CB3 0US

Moderator: Dr Lauren Wilcox, University of Cambridge Centre for Gender Studies

Following on the successful session on Gender Equality in the 7th Cambridge-UTokyo Symposium in 2022, in this session we will continue to explore the topic of Equality, Diversity and Inclusion. The University of Tokyo and the University of Cambridge are both committed to equality of opportunity and the promotion of an inclusive culture and the value of diversity. In this session, colleagues will introduce ED&I related research, activities and initiatives of the two universities, and will discuss how ED&I can be improved in our campuses and societies both from an academic perspective and from an administrative perspective. It aims to increase our understanding and awareness of ED&I and explore opportunities for engagement and collaboration.

Location: Hybrid; The West Hub, JJ Thomson Avenue, Cambridge, CB3 0US

Moderator: Prof Yasushi Umeda, School of Engineering, The University of Tokyo

Sustainability is the world's most critical issue, and therefore needs to be discussed continuously at UTokyo-Cambridge Joint Symposia. This year, the key question of this session is "How can cutting-edge engineering contribute to sustainability?" We invite four speakers from the two institutes to cover a broad range of relevant topics from both social and technological viewpoints; these topics may include energy, robotics, manufacturing, circular economy, future prospect, and road mapping.

PARALLEL SESSION 3

AI TRENDS, OPPORTUNITIES AND THREATS

Date: Monday 25 September 2023

Time: 09:30am-12:10pm UK / 17:30pm-20:10pm Japan

Location: Hybrid; The West Hub, JJ Thomson Avenue, Cambridge, CB3 0US

Moderator: Prof Hideaki Shiroyama, Institute for Future Initiatives, The University of Tokyo

Reflecting the keen interest in the opportunities and threats AI poses, the UK will host the first global summit on AI regulation and Japan's AI strategy council has met for the first time. As the world scrambles to develop rules on AI regulation amidst rapid technological change, researchers from the Leverhulme Centre for the Future of Intelligence and Centre for Study of Existential Risk (Cambridge), Computer Science and Technology (Cambridge) and Graduate School of Public Policy (UTokyo) in this session will share their perspectives on AI from their respective research fields.

MAIN SESSION

TRUSTED RESEARCH AND INTERNATIONAL RESEARCH COLLABORATION

Date: Tuesday 26 September 2023

Time: 09:00am-12:10pm UK / 17:00pm-20:10pm Japan

Location: Hybrid; Maxwell Centre, JJ Thomson Avenue, Cambridge, CB3 0HE

Moderator: Prof Frank Stajano, Department of Computer Science and Technology, University of Cambridge

International research collaboration is key to tackle and navigate contemporary global challenges, such as climate change, global health, sustainable development and so on. There is an increasing need to minimise risks associated with operating within a global research and innovation ecosystem while maximising the opportunities. In this session, keynote speakers will discuss trusted research, responsible research and innovation, opportunities for UK-Japan research collaboration, and so on.
