Time: 12:00-13:15 Tokyo Standard Time

Join a conversation with an admission officer and current student from Knight-Hennessy Scholars, a multidisciplinary, multicultural graduate scholarship program.

Each Knight-Hennessy scholar receives up to three years of financial support to pursue graduate studies at Stanford, which does not need to be repaid. Scholars form a community while engaging in leadership development experiences that prepare them to be visionary, courageous, and collaborative leaders who address the world's complex challenges.

The information session will be held in English, but a Japanese current scholar, Ryunosuke Goto (graduated from the Faculty of Medicine, University of Tokyo in 2019 and currently a doctoral student at Stanford University), will participate remotely, so questions and answers will also be available in Japanese.

We look forward to your participation.
